TO THE READER

How to use this letter

You are reading this because someone trusted you with the care of Emily. Andy Davis wrote it to hand you what a family learns over a lifetime — so you don't have to relearn it the hard way.

- Nothing here is legally binding. This letter informs your judgment; it doesn't replace it — or any court order, care plan, or trust document.
- If you are new to Emily, start with "A typical week" and "For whoever steps in." They will carry you through the first week.
- In a crisis, go straight to "Health and medical." There is also a separate one-page emergency sheet that pairs with this letter — keep copies where family and the hospital can grab them.
- Check the date on the cover. Routines, medications, and contacts drift. If this letter is more than a year old, verify the medical details before relying on them.
- No Social Security, account, or policy numbers appear in this letter, on purpose. It says where those are kept instead.
- The ruled lines at the end of each section are for you. Write on this document — it is meant to be used, not preserved.

Thank you for caring for Emily.

Key points at a glance

CALL IN THIS ORDER

1. Molly — (555) 019-4402. Closest and calmest. Call me second.
2. Molly Davis-Pena · Daughter · (555) 019-4402
3. Hannah Phillips · Neighbor · (555) 017-4417

How to talk with them

FROM "COMMUNICATION"

Say it straight and say it once. Money comes better from me, health from Molly. Never open with 'we've decided.'

Medical facts that cannot wait

FROM "HEALTH & MEDICAL"

Sulfa drugs — rash, documented at Tri-County General. Atrial fibrillation (2019). Osteoarthritis, both knees and the right hip. Hearing loss, aided.

What makes it worse

FROM "COMMUNICATION"

'At your age.' The word 'facility' in any sentence. And comparing her to her sister, who was in care within a year of her stroke.

What we ask never to be changed

FROM "FOR WHOEVER STEPS IN"

Do not move her to a bedroom downstairs. The stairs are the only exercise she gets, and that room is the one she shared with Dad and then took back.

Every point above is a summary. The full answer, in the family's own words, is in the section named beneath each heading.

About Emily

DATE OF BIRTH

November 3, 1952

WHO THEY ARE, IN YOUR WORDS

Mom is seventy-three and still the most capable person in any room, which is exactly the problem. She raised two of us on her own, worked twenty-six years at the Dinoco office, and paid off the house on Elm Street by herself.

TEMPERAMENT, HUMOR, AND PRIDE

She will accept a ride but not an arm. Offering to carry her bag is fine; taking it out of her hand is not. She would rather be twenty minutes late than hurried.

WHAT THEY CANNOT ABIDE

Being talked about in the third person while she is standing there. Also baby talk, and anyone rearranging her kitchen.

WHAT STRANGERS MOST OFTEN GET WRONG ABOUT THEM

People see the hearing aids and start shouting. She hears fine if you face her and speak normally, and shouting only embarrasses her.

WHO WOULD YOU CALL FIRST IN AN EMERGENCY?

Molly — (555) 019-4402. Closest and calmest. Call me second.

IS THERE ANYONE WHO SHOULD NOT BE GIVEN A ROLE?

Al McWhiggin, a cousin on Dad's side, should not be told anything about her finances. He has turned up twice to talk about freeing up equity in the house.

Talking with Emily

HOW THEY PREFER TO BE SPOKEN TO, AND BY WHOM

Say it straight and say it once. Money comes better from me, health from Molly. Never open with 'we've decided.'

HEARING, VISION, AND MEMORY, AS THEY ARE NOW

Hearing aids both ears; she forgets the left one twice a week. Memory is sharp for 1974 and patchy for last Tuesday, and she covers for it rather than ask you to repeat something.

WHAT THEY WILL NOT ADMIT TO NEEDING

Pain in her hip. Trouble on the stairs at night. The tell is that she cancels something small — she never cancels.

WHAT TO AVOID SAYING

'At your age.' The word 'facility' in any sentence. And comparing her to her sister, who was in care within a year of her stroke.

CONDITIONS AND DIAGNOSES

Atrial fibrillation (2019). Osteoarthritis, both knees and the right hip. Hearing loss, aided.

ALLERGIES AND BAD REACTIONS

Sulfa drugs — rash, documented at Tri-County General.

MEDICATIONS

WHAT IT IS FOR Blood thinner — never skip; any head knock is an ER visit

DOCTORS AND OTHER PROVIDERS

Dr. Trixie Hamm

SPECIALTY OR ROLE Primary care, twenty years

PHONE (555) 017-3311

WHERE THE CARDS, RECORDS, AND DIRECTIVES ARE KEPT

Blue folder in the kitchen dresser. A copy of the medication list is on the fridge for the paramedics — keeping that current matters more than anything here.

For whoever steps in

WHAT THE FIRST WEEK SHOULD LOOK LIKE

Day one: call Hannah two doors down — she has a key and knows the routine. Then Molly. Buster the cat goes to Molly, not a cattery. Day two: Dr. Hamm's office for the current medication list, and water the tomatoes.

WHAT YOU WOULD DO DIFFERENTLY, IN HINDSIGHT

I wish we had done the downstairs bathroom two years ago, when it was a project and not an emergency. And I wish I had asked what she was frightened of about the driving — it was being stranded, not being unsafe.

WHAT YOU WOULD ASK NEVER TO BE CHANGED

Do not move her to a bedroom downstairs. The stairs are the only exercise she gets, and that room is the one she shared with Dad and then took back.

WHO TO CONSULT BEFORE ANYTHING IRREVERSIBLE

Molly before anything. Barbara Peep before any judgement about how Mom is really coping — Barbara gets the truth and we get the performance.

A personal message

TO EMILY'S FUTURE CAREGIVERS

Thank you for looking after my mother. She will let you do things for her long before she will let you decide things for her, and if you get that the wrong way round she will freeze you out politely and permanently.

She spent thirty years being the person everyone relied on and has no idea how to be on the other side of it. Ask her advice about something real, and take it.

TO EMILY

Mom —

You will hate that I wrote this down. You will say it was morbid and that you are perfectly capable, and you are, and I did it anyway.

I did it because you spent our whole childhood making sure that if anything happened to you, somebody would know where everything was. You were doing this for us for thirty years and calling it being organised.

The tomatoes are fine. Somebody watered them. — Andy
